GERMANS 10 MILES FROM ROSTOV

GROWING MENACE TO DONETZ WEALTH

RUSSIAN troops are doggedly resisting the relentless drive in which Von Rundstedt's million and a half of men threaten the wealthy Donetz Basin, where nearly half of the Soviet's coal and iron production are at stake.

At Kharkov, from which large tank and 'plane plants have already joined the eastward trek to the Urals, Von Reichenau's men are trying to batter their way into the heart of the city, and Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus, is threatened on two sides.

Despite furious Russian counter-attacks, German and Italian troops assailing Rostov appear to have made further headway, and, it is estimated, are now within ten to fifteen miles of the city.

From Russian sources there is so far no confirmation of the German claim to have captured Kramatorskaya, an industrial town 100 miles south-east of Kharkov.

Marshal Timoshenko is endeavouring to stem the German tide, while new armies are organised on a 500 miles Don-Volga defence line.

"Red Star" emphasises the price at which Von Rundstedt has achieved his progress, and admits that the drive has not yet been halted. It declares: "The South has become one of the front's most important sectors. The Germans must be stopped at any cost. Our losses are considerable, but our reserves are inexhaustible."

The Germans are maintaining their furious assaults against the Perekop defences, and Moscow admits a deep break-through the Soviet line at the approaches two days ago, and says that fierce battles are still raging there.

KUIBYSHEV, Tuesday.—The Russians, while battling to hold Moscow, Leningrad and Rostov, are also preparing for the future by training a reserve army, far to the rear in Eastern Siberia, said a despatch from the Trans-Baikal military district to-night. The reserves are learning under war conditions how to fight their way out of an encirclement, to meet "psychological attacks," to destroy parachutists, and to co-operate with tanks.

The Moscow Radio to-night said that after the Germans captured Orel, south-west of Moscow, they had intended to use it as a jumping-off point for the assault on the capital. The Soviet Command, however, realising the German intentions, had made them change their plans by a number of counter-attacks. In one engagement 400 German infantry lorries, 181 'planes and scores of tanks had been destroyed.—(Associated Press.)

GENERAL VON RUNSTEDT.

FINAL ASSAULT

BERLIN, Tuesday.—Reporting Russian counter-attacks on the central front during the last few days, the German News Agency claimed to-night that the Russians threw almost all the artillery they still possess and numerous tanks into the attacks. It said that the thrusts had been unsuccessful.

The German Army was reported to have been directing its chief activities in the past 24 hours to preparing for final assault on Leningrad. Military spokesmen claimed German heavy artillery had scored hit upon hit on Leningrad, and that thick clouds of smoke had been seen rising from the artillery's targets.

German radio asserted that 20 per cent of the American 'planes flown to Russia did not reach their destination. The 'planes, the radio claimed, were piloted by Poles and Norwegians, who would be victimised as the result of their failure to deliver the machines.

FIGHT FOR MOSCOW

MOSCOW, Tuesday.—Red Star says that the Red Army men have made headway in a number of places, and have successfully fortified themselves in new positions on the Moscow front. Continually flinging in fresh reserves, the Germans are concentrating their main forces on the right and left wings, but the Russians are hitting back, and have several times beaten off attacks. German infantry, supported by 'planes and 80 tanks, twice attacked in the vicinity of a village, but Russian troops destroyed 40 tanks and shot down eight aircraft, compelling the enemy to fall back.

Yesterday the Russians carried out a number of counter-attacks and inflicted severe losses on the Germans, occupying a number of populated districts.—(Reuter.)

THE CRIMEA

Red Star says: "After two assaults on the gateway to the Crimea, the enemy has not succeeded in breaking through to the peninsula. At its approaches fierce fighting is going on. On October 26 one German unit managed to break through deep into our defence line, and now furious battles are raging there. The danger is great. Although the enemy is weakening, he is still strong. By the intensified onslaught on Kharkov he is attempting to relieve our pressure on his armies attacking the Don Basin. In the next few days the Germans will attempt to continue their advance. The South has become one of the most important sectors. The Germans must be stopped at any cost. Our losses are considerable, but our reserves are inexhaustible. The enemy will bleed to death."—(Reuter.)

MIDNIGHT COMMUNIQUE

The Soviet midnight communiqué stated:—"During October 28 our troops fought the enemy in the direction of Mojhaisk, Maloyaroslavets, Volokolamsk and Kharkov.. The attacks of German Fascist troops on our position on a number of sectors of the Western Front were beaten off by the Red Army forces with heavy losses for the enemy.

"On October 27, according to incomplete figures, 31 German 'planes were destroyed. We lost 12 'planes.

"According to precise figures, 20 German 'planes were brought down near Moscow on October 27, and not 8, as previously reported.

"On October 28, six enemy 'planes were brought down near Moscow."

Volokalamsg is sixty miles north-west of Moscow, midway between Rzhev and Moscow.—(Reuter.)

"A LIVING CHURCH"

ARMAGH REPLY TO DUBLIN SYNOD

SPEAKING at the Armagh Diocesan Synod yesterday, the Venerable A. Lockett Ford, Archdeacon of Armagh, said that the Armagh Synod recognised, as the Dublin Synod apparently did not, that the Church of Ireland was not a dying Church, but a living Church, which was making progress.

The Primate (the Most Rev. J. A. F. Gregg, D.D.), in his presidential address in the Alexander Synod Hall, stressed the danger of becoming carelessly indifferent to the war, merely because they were not in the war area, and of failing to heed the sharp warnings from districts not far from them of the suddenness with which war could break upon a peaceful population.

"To a certain degree," said Dr. Gregg, "we have become accustomed to the many changes which the war has introduced to our affairs. At the same time we must beware of that careless indifference which has tended to grow up in areas where the military aspects of the war have not penetrated."

It was the forgetfulness of the claim of God upon their watchful service at all times that constituted one of the greatest dangers besetting men and women when the war strain was removed by the return of peace, he stated. This peace was often signalised by the abandonment of restraints and an outbreak of moral laxity, due to the fact that those who had found in the war their driving purpose suddenly found themselves without this purpose.

Dealing with the problem of juvenile delinquency, the Primate suggested that the solution lay less with programmes than with people. To teach the words of religion without teaching the practice would not carry them far. He drew the attention of the Synod to an article in The Times Educational Supplement, which stated that, while Russia had officially shaken off its adherence to Christianity, its treatment of the problem of child delinquency displayed a wisdom and an understanding worthy of study and imitation. If Christian teaching was lacking there, there seemed to be something very like Christian sympathy.

MAKING PROGRESS

The Rev. T. F. Campbell, Secretary, moving the adoption of the report of the Diocesan Council, reported that the financial position was very satisfactory. The report was adopted.

The Archdeacon of Armagh, the Ven. A. Lockett Ford, moving that the salary of the Diocesan Secretary be increased from £225 to £250, and that the office be kept open five days a week instead of three or four, said that the Armagh Synod recognised, as the Dublin Synod apparently did not recognise that the Church of Ireland was not a dying Church but a living Church which was making progress, and in which a great deal of work was being done.

The motion, which was seconded by Mr. J. C. Crossle, was adopted.

The Diocesan Board of Religious Education reported that work in the diocese had gone on steadily, despite the influx of evacuee children from Belfast.

DROGHEDA GRAMMAR SCHOOL

An appeal for the prevention of the closing of Drogheda Grammar School, an Erasmus Smith institute, was made by Major R. E. Barrow. He said that when the school was opened two and a half years ago there was not a stick of furniture in it, and now, thanks to the energy of the staff, it was completely furnished. The staff had, with the aid of the pupils, installed the electric lighting themselves, and the Board had had to bear only the expense of the actual materials. It had been decided, continued the Major, to send a deputation to the Erasmus Smith Board to ask them to postpone the closing of the school until at least July, and to allow the Headmaster, who previously had nothing to do with the finances, to run the school himself, with no expense to the Board. The Headmaster intended to devote his salary to the school, and this, together with certain other assets and the pupils' fees, would, he hoped, be sufficient to keep the school running.

It was pointed out by another speaker that twenty-five secondary school pupils would have to go to the Christian Brothers' Schools or the Convent Schools, if Drogheda Grammar School closed down.

SUPERVISING THE CINEMA

A suggestion that the cinema, which had a great influence for good and evil on the adolescent mind, should be supervised by the Government, was made in the report of the Diocesan Board of Temperance and Social Welfare.

Many people in Armagh were living in houses unfit for human habitation, under social conditions which were a disgrace to their civilisation, continued the report.

The Rev. H. W. Lowe, moving the adoption of the report, paid tribute to the high morals of the modern army. "A soldier is never a saint," he said, "but the British soldier today is better and fitter than he ever was."

Seconding the report, which was passed, the Rev. H. Lamb said that he believed that drinking had increased since the beginning of the war.

40,000 DAILY MEALS FROM MANSION HOUSE

BY OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

AS reported exclusively in yesterday's "Irish Times," the Dublin Corporation has established a fully-equipped community kitchen at the Mansion House. Yesterday Mr. P. J. Hernon, City Manager, told me that the kitchen will be able to supply 40,000 meals a day, the meal to consist of meat, potatoes and other vegetables in the form of a stew.

"Under Emergency Powers Order No. 109," said Mr. Hernon, "I will shortly be in a position to inaugurate the scheme in four distribution depôts at the following places: Ballybough, Charlemont street, Corporation street and Sean McDermott street. An additional six distribution centres can be opened within a week from the date of the inauguration of the scheme. Four of these centres will be: North Circular road, Francis street, Mary's Abbey and Thomas street. I am arranging with the following local authorities for the supply of cooked meals to the distribution centres: Grangegorman Mental Hospital, the Dublin Board of Assistance, and the Dublin Vocational Education Committee."

AT BALLSBRIDGE

Mr. Hernon added that preparations are also being made to use the well-equipped kitchen at the Sweepstake premises, Ballsbridge, which had been placed at the Corporation's disposal by Irish Hospitals' Trust, Ltd. Arrangements are to be made to subsidise approved charitable and philanthropic bodies in Dublin, so that they may be able to increase the number of cooked meals which they are already serving.

Bearing out the idea, which has been understood all along, that the meals will be on a strictly non-profit basis, Mr. Hernon states that the charge for each meal will not exceed the cost of the meal to the Corporation.

TO-DAY'S SITTING OF THE DAIL

FOUR BILLS FOR SECOND READING

The business for the Dail session, which opens to-day, is not likely to be heavy. Indications are that the House will sit for one day only and then adjourn till the 12th November. It is understood that the sittings for the present will conclude each day at 10 p.m., instead of 10.30, as has been the custom. This is in order to enable the deputies and staffs of the House to get home in reasonable time in view of the transport difficulties.

After questions to-day, Mr. Hugo Flinn, in his new capacity as Controller of Fuel Supplies, will make an important statement on the turf situation.

There are ninety-five questions for oral answer by Ministers.

Mr. Eamonn O'Neill (F.F., West Cork) will ask the Minister for Finance if it is proposed to introduce during the session legislation for the setting up of a Central Bank, and whether it proposes to deal with financial problems which will arise out of inflation of the pound sterling as a war aftermath.

General Mulcahy will ask the Minister for Finance whether any inquiry has been made as to the extent of speculative buying of land and other property by other than Irish nationals since the beginning of the emergency, and what measures had been taken regarding it.

There are four bills on the order paper for second reading, namely, the Referendum Bill, the Water Supplies Bill, an Imposition of Duties Bill, and the Shops (Amendment) Bill.

A new Electoral Bill will be introduced to prohibit persons who have not reached the age of twenty-one from voting at elections of members of Dail Eireann. Existing legislation prohibits such persons from voting, but it is understood that a defect has been discovered in it which the new bill is intended to rectify.

FUTURE OF AVIATION IN EIRE

Eire should have at least twelve aerodromes, for internal and external traffic, if she is to take part in the rapid development of air travel which will come immediately after the war, said Mr. H. T. O'Rourke, F.R.I.A.I., F.R.I.B.A., F.R.S.A., at a meeting of the Architectural Association in 5 Merrion square, Dublin, yesterday. A beginning, he said, had been made with catering for external traffic, but it was not likely that the railway interests would show enthusiasm about the development of internal air routes, so that the work of sponsoring initial development would fall on the Government and on local authorities. The time was approaching when an aerodrome would be something which every large town would have to provide and equip.

A new era of aerial transport had forced itself upon the world; the stage of guaranteed safety was approaching. Seventeen air lines, covering millions of miles in America, had had no serious accident in 1940; Irish Air Lines had never lost a passenger; weather and climate as affecting aviation were rapidly being overcome, and darkness was no longer a deterrent. To meet the new situation a tentative pattern of future airways, prepared by the Government, was necessary. Other nations were speeding up their preparations, and this country could not ignore that fact indefinitely. Marvellous progress in military aviation was being made, and this would be utilised to aid civil aviation after the war.

The President, Mr. G. McNichol, B.Arch., M.R.I.A.I., presided.

A warning to Turkish citizens that danger has not passed was given yesterday by Dr. Seydam, the Turkish Premier, in a speech on Turkey's National Day, says Ankara radio. He described the international situation as still dark.—(Reuter.)

MR. ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH

COMMENT IN U.S. AND EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Messages arriving at the White House after President Roosevelt's speech, Mr. Early, his secretary, stated, "favoured the speech by about eight to one."

General praise came from Senate supporters of President Roosevelt's foreign policy, but there was sharp criticism by the Isolationists.

Senator Lister Hill (Democrat, Alabama) said: "The speech was magnificent in its timeliness and in its leadership."

Senator Burton Wheeler: "There can be no question that President Roosevelt will interpret repeal of the Neutrality Act as a mandate from Congress to go ahead into a shooting war."

Senator Taft (Republican, Ohio) said: "Passage of the resolution before the Senate would be direct authority from Congress to the President to carry on an undeclared war against Germany, Italy and Japan on all the oceans of the world and in all ports into which sea-going ships may sail." He added that anyone who had heard the President "can hardly doubt he is proposing that the U.S. carry on an undeclared war and is asking Congress for authority to do so.—(Associated Press.)

GERMAN COMMENT

LONDON, Tuesday.—The German Radio called the President a "cowardly jackal" and a "ridiculous puppet in the hands of international Jewry." His speech, listeners were told, was the "vilest yet."

A statement issued through the German News Agency stated that the speech "exceeds in shamelessness, vulgarity and brazenness anything yet dished out to a modern nation. The utterances of fools do not receive official denial; the reaction to his speech cannot be political, but medical, or in the realm of criminal investigation."

BERLIN, Tuesday. — The Hamburger Fremdenblatt viewed the speech as the "last step to an undeclared shooting war against Germany and her Allies.

"MORE BRITISH BASES FOR U.S.?"

WASHINGTON, Tuesday. — Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, declined to indicate to-day whether the United States might acquire additional air and naval bases from Britain under a general Anglo-American agreement for the repayment of supplies under the Lease-Lend Act. He told reporters that details of the agreement were still under negotiation, and he was not in a position to forecast the final terms. Asked whether Japan had notified the United States that it would be useless to continue Japanese-American discussions on a possible settlement of the Far Eastern question unless some agreement was reached by November 15, he replied that he had received no notification to that effect.—(Reuter).

MAP ALLEGATION

WASHINGTON, Tuesday. — President Roosevelt said to-day that German allegations of "faking" in connection with his statement that he had a German map for the partition of South America was very amusing. The President said that the map would only be disclosed to interested parties in the strictest confidence, so that there could be no tracing of the "poor devil from whom it was obtained."—(Reuter.)

USE OF RADIOGRAPHY IN TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. John Duffy, of the Dublin City Public Health Department, last night advocated the use of mass radiography to detect tuberculosis in its early stages in the youth of Ireland, in a paper which he read to the University College, Dublin, Students' Medical Society.

This system, he said, would save thousands from the fatal effects of the disease and would be much quicker than the present method, by which the disease is treated only when it reaches the clinical stage. He praised the authorities of the Adelaide Hospital, which had installed a group investigation system for its students last year. Special radiograph cameras which took pictures of postage stamp size, he added, were now in use in Britain, Australia, America, and on the Continent. They showed abnormalities in the lung. The larger X-ray cameras would show the more detailed advance of the disease. Dr. Duffy suggested the use of these miniature radiograph cameras in Irish factories and colleges, or wherever groups of people could be found to submit to the test.

Dr. Edward Keenan, President of the Society, was in the chair. A vote of thanks to Dr. Duffy was proposed by Dr. J. Mowbray and seconded by Dr. M. Moriarty, M.A.

FIVE HOURS' FIRE IN GALWAY

TENANTS JUMP FROM WINDOWS

THIRTY people, the members of seven families, had narrow escapes from death in a burning four-storey tenement at Lombard street, Galway, yesterday morning. Many escaped by jumping from the windows, after throwing their children to the people on the pavement.

Blankets and old sacks were used to catch those who jumped from windows, but a number of the terrified tenants fell on the footpath and sustained injuries which necessitated their removal to Galway Central Hospital. One child of 12 months old, Kitty Hair, sustained serious head injuries and is in a critical condition in hospital. The children rescued ranged in age from four months to nine years.

The tenement was one of the oldest in Galway, and, having been condemned by the medical officer, was due for demolition as soon as alternative accommodation could be found for the occupants by the Corporation. The residents at the time of the fire were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Laffey and one baby, Mrs. Patrick Hair and four children, Mrs. Mary McDonagh (widow) and two children, Mrs. Kate Keaveney, her niece, Miss Delia Glennon, and one child; Mrs. Margaret Laffey and five children, Mrs. J. O'Donoghue and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Quinn and five children.

The fire, which started shortly after 6 a.m., spread with alarming rapidity, and although the Galway Fire Brigade, under Mr. P. O'Flaherty, Borough Surveyor, and Captain Tim Duggan, were quickly on the scene and laid fourteen lines of hose, they were unable to check its headway, but succeeded in keeping it from enveloping adjacent buildings after a period of five hours.

The alarm was given by Thomas Laffey, who noticed smoke in his room, who first got his wife and child to the street and then roused the other tenants. He brought some children to safety, and saw people jumping from windows and babies being thrown down. He helped to break their fall.

Those detained in hospital are Mrs. Hair and her two children, Desmond and Kitty; Mrs. O'Donoghue and Mrs. Keaveney. Apart from Kitty Hair, their injuries are not serious.

BELFAST FAMILY PERISH IN FIRE

RESCUE OPERATIONS IMPOSSIBLE

A family of four perished when fire broke out at their home, 839 Crumlin road, Belfast, this morning.

The victims were James Coulter, his wife, Mary Coulter, and their daughters Margaret (8) and Lilian (18 months). They were asleep in a second storey room and were trapped by the flames, which were so fierce that firemen could not attempt operations.

ATTACK ON A CONVOY

BRITISH TANKER TORPEDOED

The tanker, British Mariner, which has been carrying American oil to Britain, was torpedoed and probably sunk on October 20 during an attack on a convoy 250 miles west of Monrovia (Liberia), according to marine circles, says a Reuter telegram from New York.

They report that the attack occurred near the spot where the American ship Lehigh was sunk the day before.

The British Mariner (6,996 tons) is owned by the British Tanker Co., Ltd., and is registered in London.

Reuter also reports that three Finnish freighters, the Hogland (4,360 tons), the Auri (2,517 tons) and Cisie, have been sunk by Axis action in the Baltic, with a total loss of twenty lives, marine circles report in New York.

Lloyd's Register does not list a ship named Cisie, but there is the Cisil, a Finnish vessel of 1,848 tons.

EMPTY LIFEBOATS

MADRID, Tuesday.—The tanker Remedios, which arrived at Teneriffe to-day from Venezuela, reports that she picked up two empty lifeboats belonging to a British ship.—(Reuter.)

DUBLIN 'BUS SERVICES REDUCED

STRIKERS ASKED TO RESUME WORK

THE strike of Dublin Transport Company employés spread yesterday, with a marked effect on the services on most of the routes. At certain times of the day yesterday there were no 'buses to be seen on some shorter routes, presumably because they had been taken off to supplement more urgently-needed services. When 'buses did come they were so quickly filled at the first few stops that people waiting at other stops had to do without them.

An official of the Transport Company stated last night that half the usual number of 'buses and all the trams were in commission during the day.

The Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union, which is conducting the strike, claimed last night that 1,500 men were on strike; but the company's spokesman said that this was ridiculously high, as, if it were true, the services which had been maintained would have been impossible. He said that the number was about 700 out of a total of 1,800.

One of the largest meetings ever held by the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union was held last night, at which employés of the company, including strikers, attended, and a vote of confidence in the union's executive was passed with acclamation. The president asked the men to resume work this morning.

Mr. W. Murphy, secretary of the 'Bus and Tram Branch of the union, reviewed the situation, and said that after the I.T.G.W.U. had obtained certain benefits from the company for their men 21 of the remaining 28 members of the A.T.G.W.U. had sent them a document setting out the terms on which they would join the Irish union. All the signatures to this, he said, were written in the same hand, and 11 of the signatories had since repudiated the document. The other 10 had been given every chance to join the union. If they had joined the union they still would have had their jobs.

An official of the company said yesterday that somebody had informed the police that conductors were carrying more than the legal number of passengers in some cases. The company would stand over their employés' actions in trying to alleviate hardship. He appealed to shoppers, cinema-goers, etc., to avoid travelling at peak periods, and curtail their use of buses to the minimum while the strike lasted.

An undesirable feature of the effects of the strike is the indiscriminate rushing for 'buses that has been taking place at most of the stops in the centre of the city at the rush hours. At some of the stops in O'Connell street Civic Guards were on duty yesterday, but they were unable to deal with the situation that arose as each 'bus pulled in. It would be impossible for the authorities to police every one of the stops, and the situation is not likely to improve if more 'buses go off the road unless the passengers take it on themselves to form queues.

Following the Irish Transport Union meeting, a considerable number of strikers returned immediately to their depôts and reported for work. Cinema and theatre patrons were pleasantly surprised at the increased amount of transport available for them.

BRITISH RAID ON SOUTHERN ITALY

BOMBERS BLOW UP GOODS TRAIN

Medium bombers on Monday last attacked and blew up a goods train near Cotrene, Southern Italy, while a railway bridge in the vicinity sustained direct hits, said Tuesday's Royal Air Force Middle East communiqué.

Benghazi Harbour was attacked on the night of October 26-27 and again on Monday night. Fires were started in the workshops, and railway installations and military buildings were hit. Raids are also reported by Naval aircraft on the anti-aircraft guns at Bardia and on store-dumps near Gambut landing ground. British aircraft returned safely from all these operations.

In yesterday's joint report, the High Command and Air Headquarters at Nairobi stated that on October 24 "an enemy patrol" from the Devar area was driven back by native forces, with losses, the natives suffering no casualties. British aircraft on October 25 attacked an encampment and a motor transport near Guramba, south of Gondar, making direct hits with bombs and machine-gun fire, Guramba, it is added, "is an important market centre, from which General Nasi gets supplies for his forces, which are surrounded in the Gondar area."

During patrols over the Channel and Northern France yesterday British fighters destroyed two German fighters in combat. Barges and other targets in the Dunkirk area were attacked, and a German fighter was destroyed on the ground at Berck aerodrome.

"Hudson aircraft of the Coastal Command bombed an enemy convoy off Terschelling, early this morning. None of our aircraft is missing from these operations," said last night's Air Ministry communiqué.

AUSTRALIAN GETS V.C.

CAIRO, Tuesday.—Private James Heather Gordon, of the Australian Forces, has been awarded the Victoria Cross for "most conspicuous gallantry in action on July 10th, 1941, near Djezzine, during the operations in Syria," it was announced to-day.

Gordon is the second Australian to get the V.C. in this war.

The citation said that, single-handed and on his own initiative, he charged a machine-gun post and killed four gunners with the bayonet after two officers and three other ranks had failed to demolish the post.—(Associated Press.)

U.S. PLANNING ANTI-STRIKE LAW

PRESIDENTS LETTER TO LABOUR LEADER

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—President Roosevelt stated to-day that he was considering general legislation to deal with strikes in defence industries.

Reporters asked him whether he was considering legislation for compulsory arbitration or for the suspension of the right to strike on defence jobs. He replied that if the inquiry was limited to general legislation and specific requirements were omitted, the answer would be "Yes." He said, however, that there were probably ten ideas of specific methods that might have to be considered, and not just two.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he had received no reply from the Labour leader, Mr. John Lewis, to his third appeal for immediate resumption of work in coal mines, where 53,000 miners are on strike.—(Reuter.)

Senator Josiah Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, proposed in the Senate to-night an amendment to the pending bill to permit arming merchant ships which would bring labour strikes within the category of sabotage when their intent was to retard defence production.

The Senator's action came as President Roosevelt confronted Mr. John J. Lewis with a virtual ultimatum to end "captive" coal mines strike, called on the Mine-workers' Union's demand for a "union shop." Other Senators urged the President to take "firm measures" in halting strikes.

The President had sent a third message to Mr. Lewis, in which he emphasised the "large question of adequate fuel supply" was of greater interest and importance to the national welfare than disputes between the union leader and industrial heads.—(Associated Press.)

BREAK IN DECEMBER

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Diplomatists of the Axis Powers here calculate that President Roosevelt takes a forward step every two months, and that the next—the severance of diplomatic relations—should come at the end of December.—Times telegram, per Press Association (copyright).

FRENCH HOSTAGES REPRIEVED

HITLER'S PERSONAL ORDER

VICHY, Tuesday.—The execution of the surviving 100 hostages as a reprisal for the killing of German officers at Nantes and Bordeaux was suspended on Herr Hitler's personal order, von Stuelpnagel, Commander-in-Chief of the German Army of Occupation in France, stated to-night.

He issued the following notice to the French people: "I have informed the French Government that the Fuehrer of the Reich has decided to suspend the execution of the other hostages as a reprisal for the attacks at Nantes and Bordeaux. The last opportunity is thus given to all French people to co-operate in the inquiry into these crimes, and thus to demonstrate by deeds their disapproval of these odious attacks.

"Let each Frenchman think that it is in his power to collaborate in clearing up the cowardly crimes, and he can at the same time by his attitude prevent the shooting of his compatriots as hostages, and eventually obtain the release of relatives who are prisoners. The German Army in France would, like me, be happy if measures such as those which have been taken should not have to be repeated."—(Reuter.)

"KEEP YOUR HEAD HIGH"

GOEBBELS APPEALS TO BERLINERS

BERLIN, Tuesday.—Dr. Goebbels, German Propaganda Minister, in a newspaper appeal to the population of the city, pointed to the "certainly not easy" weeks and months ahead, and asked them to "keep your head high and never give in. I know you have it hard to-day—sometimes you have to go without your glass of beer, sometimes without cigarettes. Then, because the necessary hands are not available, you have to shovel coal. At nights you go into air raid cellars, and after two hours' sleep go back to hard work. That is the way of it in many cities in the Reich, and in some it is even worse," the appeal concluded.—(Associated Press.)

Of the first five potato factories to be established in Northern Ireland, one will be situated in Newry.

NORTHERN MINISTRY CHANGES

It was officially announced in Belfast yesterday that Mr. William Grant, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labour, has been appointed Minister of Public Security in Northern Ireland, in succession to Mr. J. C. MacDermott, K.C., who becomes Attorney-General.

The appointments follow the retirement of Judge Thompson from the Recordership of Belfast. Mr. Arthur Black, K.C., the present Attorney-General, succeeds Judge Thompson, and Mr. Grant's place at the Ministry of Labour will be taken by Mr. Rowley Elliott, M.P. for South Tyrone.

Mr. Black's appointment will cause a by-election in the Willowfield division of Belfast, which he has represented since 1925. Mr. Harry Midgley, Chairman of the Northern Ireland Labour Party, has announced that he will stand.

FUNERAL OF AIR CRASH VICTIM

With full military honours the funeral took place at Mallow, County Cork, yesterday, of Sergeant Douglas Albert Woodman, Royal Canadian Air Force Overseas (England), who crashed with two others at Schull, West Cork, last Thursday, and died in a southern military hospital the following evening. The funeral procession was from the military hospital to a cemetery at Goold's Hill. Behind the hearse walked a representative of the Canadian Government, Mr. Edward J. Garland, Secretary to the High Commissioner for Canada in Eire, and from the United Kingdom Office in Dublin were Mr. R. J. W. Legwood and Captain Richard St. John Colthurst. The Eire Government and the Army were represented by officers, who marched immediately behind the hearse.

The Service at the hospital mortuary and at the cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Claude L. Chevasse, Church of Ireland Rector.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By MYLES NA gCOPALEEN

I AM sick reading of the "strange fact" that turf is 80 per cent. water. If it is 80 per cent. water, cutting and saving it must be a gross waste of public money. If water, plus a little something is turf, then Dublin very nearly has an extensive bog at Roundwood and another under construction at Poulaphouca. Citizens can almost get the wherewithal to set up a roaring fire by merely turning on the tap, or even by the more familiar expedient of sending round a jug next door.

What precisely is this other 20 per cent? Can we not isolate it, manufacture it and sell it to the public for overnight steeping? Alternatively, could we not break down the structure of the 20 per cent. solids and pipe a turf supply from the Bog of Allen (whoever he was) to our larger towns and cities? Could we not, having an initial coal fire, bake potfuls of turf on it so that each hour of firing would itself beget its next hour of fuel? Could we not set up a commission composed of accredited bog-trotters to give the nation the benefit of their immemorial experience? Or even ask me to publish a picture of an ingenious machine that will solve the whole difficulty?

In the Sere the Yellow

Looking over my well-thumbed volume of Keats the other day ("First Prize for English Composition, Clongowes Wood College, 1888") I re-read the sonnet on the four seasons of man.

"He has his summer, when luxuriously
Spring's honeyed end of youthful thought he loves
To ruminate, and by such dreaming nigh
Is nearest unto heaven; quiet coves
His soul has in its Autumn, when his wings
He furleth close . . ."

This is largely hearsay or guesswork on the part of Keats, who died when he was a boy. All the same, he was not far out. I am old enough myself to know what Autumn is, and I find that my habits are of the order imagined by the poet. There is nothing I like better than an evening with a few quiet coves in the dimmer corner of a pub, murmuring together in friendship the judgements of our mature minds. As regards furling my wings close, that is also true enough. To spend a whole bob or a tanner in one go entails physical suffering. My little pension is woefully inelastic. A wing or two saved in ordering porter instead of stout is not to be despised. A borrowed match, a cadged filling of the pipe, all small things mount mightily in a year.

The Plain People of Ireland: Did you really go to Clongowes?

Myself: Certainly.

The Plain People of Ireland: Isn't that a fancy place, gentlemen's sons and all the rest of it.

Myself: It is. That's what I mean.

The Plain People of Ireland: Um Did they teach you spelling there at all?

Myself: They taught me anything you like to mention.

The Plain People of Ireland: Then how about the word "judgement" above? Unless we are very much mistaken, that should be JUDGMENT.

Myself: It is unthinkable that you should be very much mistaken, but if you take the trouble to look up any dictionary, you will find that either form is admissible, you smug, self-righteous swine.

(Half to Myself: The ignorant self-opinionated sod-minded suet-brained ham-faced mealy-mouthed streptococcus-ridden gang of natural gobdaws!)

Pax Hibernica

"That a neighbour, attired only in his shirt, was involved in an assault, was alleged at Cahir Court, when J.R. summoned J.W. and W.W. for assault by striking him on the mouth and face with their fists.

"J.R. said he was at home at about 10 o'clock. He was aroused by a knock on the door and he opened it. There was a man standing outside, whom he recognised as J.W. 'Before I had time to ask anything I was struck in the mouth by him,' said witness. 'I pushed out the door and went back and got a sweeping brush. I opened the door again and raised the brush. Before I could do anything he was on top of me and had a hold of the brush. He was joined by his father, W.W., who appeared in the street naked, except for a shirt. His younger brother, also naked, except for a shirt he wore, also came out. W. struck me several times, and there was also a scrubbing brush thrown at me.'"

Protestantism in Ireland

During recent weeks there has been a great discussion in public and in private regarding the present position of the Church of Ireland. At last week's meeting in Dublin of the Joint Synods of the United Dioceses of Dublin, Glendalough and Kildare reference was made to the alarming decrease in Church populations, and to the difficulties that were being experienced by small congregations in their efforts to finance their parishes. There can be no doubt whatever that the population, not only of the Church of Ireland, but also of the other Protestant churches, is declining in Eire. There are many reasons for this decline, some of which have been discussed at length in the columns of this newspaper; but the fact which every Irish Protestant must face squarely is that numbers are falling rapidly, and that, apparently, nothing is being done to stop the rot. At yesterday's meeting of the Armagh Diocesan Synod, the Venerable A. Lockett Ford, Archdeacon of Armagh, declared that the Armagh Synod recognised, as apparently the Dublin Synod did not recognise, that the Church of Ireland "was not a dying Church, but a living Church, which was making progress, and in which a great deal of work was being done." We do not deny for a moment the force of Archdeacon Ford's argument; but in the nature of things he is thinking more of the condition of affairs in the six counties of Northern Ireland than of the twenty-six counties of Eire. In this part of the country church populations are falling, not only because young people are leaving, or have left, Ireland for Great Britain and other parts of the British Empire, but also because the Church of Ireland, as a body, is not keeping in touch with the younger members of its flock. How many young men and women nowadays go to church on Sundays? What is being done by the Church authorities, particularly in the rural areas, to give the young people a vital interest in their Church? Is it not a fact that in far too many cases the country clergy pursue a policy of laissez faire, allowing their parishes to lie fallow, and doing virtually nothing to stimulate youthful interest in the Church's domestic affairs?

There was a time when the Church was a centre of local culture, when social and educational activities were encouraged by the clergy, when the Church was a living and vigorous influence in the life of every parishioner. Can this proud claim be made to-day? We have no doubt that there are many eager and earnest clergymen in the Church of Ireland at the moment; but there is some point in the criticism, which was made recently, that the present leaders of the Church are too old, and that they have lost touch with the younger generation. We believe that there is a great future for Irish Protestantism, which already has made a contribution to the life of the Irish nation out of all proportion to its numerical strength. We believe that it has a part to play in the future even greater than that which it has played in the past; but its leaders must be up and doing. The young men and women of the Protestant Churches must be encouraged to take a pride in their faith as well as in their nationality. They must be taught, while glorying in their religion, to take an active part in the life of the Irish nation, and to throw their gifts of intelligence, of energy and of constructive imagination into the common pool. It was suggested at the Armagh Synod yesterday that Drogheda Grammar School might have to be closed, and that twenty-five secondary pupils might be forced to receive their education from the Christian Brothers or at convent schools. Surely the Protestant Churches will not allow such an ancient institution as the Drogheda Grammar School to disappear through lack of financial support. The Church of Ireland has ample funds at its disposal, and the time has come when some of them ought to be made available for emergencies of this kind. The greatest enemy of Irish Protestantism is its own complacency; if something is not done, and done quickly, to shake it out of its self-satisfaction, one of the most potent factors for good in this country will have disappeared within the next few generations.

The 'Bus Strike

The Dublin transport strike has reached serious dimensions. Yesterday, although the trams continued to run as usual, approximately half the D.U.T.C.'s 'buses remained in their garages, and hundreds of people were compelled to walk to or from work. Like so many of the lightning strikes that have afflicted Irish industry during recent years, this stoppage is almost inexplicable. It began with the discharge of a handful of men and the hasty formation of a "Council of Action." Then it received official sanction from the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union, which is not recognised by the D.U.T.C., and whose membership within the Company has shrunk to single figures. The Irish Transport and General Workers' Union, with which alone the Company consents to treat, does not recognise the strike as official; but the Trades Union Council, at a meeting of the men this week, has given the stoppage its blessing. The whole situation is a mass of contradictions and complexities. Is the A.T.G.W.U., having nursed its wounds in silence for the best part of a year, making a fresh bid for power while there still is time? Does it hope that it can turn the tide which carried hundreds of its members into the ranks of the I.T.G.W.U., and can compel the Company, as a result, to transfer recognition to it before the Trades Union Act comes into force next March? It is estimated that at least 700 men are out on strike. Of these men the huge majority must be members of the I.T.G.W.U., which not merely condemns the strike, but has appealed to the men to return to work. Is it to be conceived that the I.T.G.W.U. is unable to control its members? We trust that Mr William Murphy's speech at last night's meeting will bring enlightenment to the strikers, and that the stoppage will be over to-day. Its whole effect so far has been to strengthen public support for the Trades Union Act, which is designed to put an end to inter-union rivalries and the stoppages that derive therefrom. It is all very well to say, as Mr. E. P. Hart said at yesterday morning's meeting under the auspices of the Dublin Trades Union Council, that this is not an inter-union dispute. In fact, it is an inter-union dispute, and one of a thoroughly unpleasant type. Granted that the original issue was the dismissal of a few men—which might have been accepted by any union as a matter of principle—yet it seems beyond contradiction that the A.T.G.W.U. has seized the opportunity to make union capital at the expense of its rival. Such action may be legitimate trades union practice; but the consequence is that once again the citizens of Dublin have to suffer. We, and the great majority of citizens, do not care particularly which union holds power, and is entitled to speak for the D.U.T.C.'s employés; but we are heartily sick of these unprincipled stoppages that do infinitely more harm than good. We can only hope that the Act will put an end to them, and we would urge that the Government, if it possesses the legal power, will advance the date at which it is due to come into effect.

Americans in Uniform

Now that America has embarked upon an extensive programme for defence, and has issued a number of propaganda films about life in the army in an attempt to persuade the young men of America that the army is a fine life, the people of this country have some opportunity of learning something about the appearance of the average American soldier. It is the proud boast of the United States Army Quartermaster Corps that the American soldier is "the best-dressed fighting man in the world." The boast probably is justified, but if we are to believe the words of a writer in the Manchester Guardian, it is not altogether surprising, for the uniform of the average American soldier costs a great deal more than that of a soldier in any other army. During the last year about $672,000,000 was spent on clothes for America's standing army of 1,500,000 men, which means an expenditure of roughly $448 per man. In simple English this means that the uniform of every soldier in the United States Army costs the Government something like £100. It is doubtful whether the Americans will wish to continue to supply their troops with uniforms of so superior a quality; for, while it is one thing to issue expensive uniforms to a small standing army, it is another thing to supply the same quality clothes to the army when every available young man in the whole of the United States has been drafted to one regiment or another, and the material for making the uniforms is beginning to cost twice as much as ever it cost. Modern uniforms, like war itself, have lost their glamour; the days when the new recruit could rush home in his new uniform to strut about in front of the family for hours like a peacock are gone for ever, and the soldier must now be satisfied with a uniform that is as unbeautiful—albeit as practical—as a pair of dungarees.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Dr. George Hewson

I listened with great pleasure to my good friend, Dr. George Hewson, a few evenings ago broadcasting from St. Patrick's Cathedral, and I have never heard the magnificent Willis four-manual organ come over the air so clearly.

It gave me, too, the suggestion of the vast empty cathedral, with the full diapasons echoing through the transepts and the nave, the dreaming dust of Swift, the ageing banners of the knights, and the dark blues and reds of the windows.

Were I an organist, there is no cathedral in which I would rather spend my life than St. Patrick's, and I am sure George Hewson agrees with me. He has been offered other cathedrals outside Ireland, but has happily remained in Dublin, where he has the added pleasure of presiding at the organ in College Chapel and wearing the gorgeous robes of a Doctor of Music.

Anonymous

I do not suppose that the hero of this particular incident will be greatly pleased to see his name in print; for he is the most modest of men. Nevertheless, as an eye-witness of the occurrence, I feel bound to narrate it.

For some reason or another—I did not notice what it was—a horse bolted in Dame street—or whatever it is you call the continuation of Dame street—last Saturday. A runaway horse is always a danger, even in this century, when we have grown used to runaway cars, and heaven knows what danger might not have occurred if help had not intervened in the form of a middle-aged gentleman in clerical attire who had been just on the point of emerging from Tommy Mason's famous shop.

The gentleman in question ran into the middle of the road with an agility that completely belied his years, wrapped his arms around the horse's neck, and brought it to a standstill. Then he faded away.

The cleric in question was the Dean of Killaloe.

"I'll Admit"

My wandering correspondent, "Con the Shaughran," tells me that the appearance of old books from public libraries is not as rare a thing on second-hand bookstalls as I had thought.

"I'll admit," he says, "that most of them have come from library shelves years ago, and many of them are not worth the few pence dealers ask for them. And obviously some of them have either been purloined or else mislaid and then replaced or paid for by unfortunate and forgetful borrowers.

"But now and again among them I have come across desired books which I have never been able to pick up anywhere else. One such is an anonymous history of Orangeism, with graphic contemporary reports on famous riots in Belfast in the stormiest years of last century. This seems to have come many years ago from the shelves of a well-known public reference library. But as it contains material I have not seen elsewhere my conscience is not tender enough to prompt me to make belated restitution for the original theft or loss. I wonder, by the way, whether my acquisition within the last year or two of a book stolen or strayed twenty years ago puts me legally or morally in the position of a receiver of stolen goods?

"You would be surprised at some of the items in my little collection—from Dublin book-barrows—of books by living or recently dead writers inscribed and presented by the authors to friends or acquaintances of theirs and mine."

Firewood

To the casual passer-by, one of the really pleasant effects of the shortage of coal is the leisurely sound of the saw in cottage yards beside country roads, where branches are cut into suitable lengths, or the dull thud of an axe dealing with logs that are too unwieldy. Heard in the autumn dusk or on a sunny day, they are such agreeable sounds.

When the saw is a cross-cut the effect upon the listener is particularly soothing. The two workers may go on for quite a long time without saying anything at all, and, when they do speak, their voices seem to fit in with the rhythm of the swishing saw.

Another very pleasant result of all this burning of wood is the colour and tang of the smoke that now rises from every cottage chimney—blue-grey and misty, instead of dark and dirty.

To the passer-by these sights and sounds are delightful, and add considerably to the charm of the countryside: but what do the distracted housewives really think about the amount of firewood needed to keep any fire going for the length of the day?

Ask them.

M. DE LOUBAJAC'S PAINTINGS

AN IMPRESSION

From a man who chooses a packing-crate as a mode of transport across the Irish Sea one would expect something extreme in the way of art. Consequently I went to M. Maurice de Loubajac's exhibition at the Gorry Galleries yesterday fully expecting to see an array of strange modernistic productions—surrealism, perhaps, or a later variety of gongorism. Instead, I found a collection of paintings which might easily have been produced in the local art school. I am not referring to the quality of the painting, but I mean that the grass was green, the sky blue, the trees stood right-way-up, and everything in unbelievably apple-pie order.

Those who go seeking sensationalism in painting will be disappointed, but most of the pictures are of the type which would look well over the mantelpiece, which is as good a test as any for art. Quite apart from M. Loubajac's own box-office appeal, this exhibition should draw large crowds; for there are a few Irish landscapes showing us our own country through the eyes of a foreigner, and a few paintings of London showing the effect of air raid damage.

It would be idle to single out any particular paintings for mention; none of them is particularly exciting, every one of them is, in its way, satisfying. I liked No. 27 (A Landscape in Provence) for its colour, No. 28 (Dublin from Jervis Street Hospital) for its atmosphere, and No. 9 (St. Paul's) for its composition.

The exhibition was opened by Miss Baker, Diplomée de l'Ecole du Louvre, who gave us a brief survey of the painter's background, and mentioned the fact that his painting was based upon the three age-old "musts" of art—colour, lines and sentiment. M. de Loubajac said a few words himself, begging the people to try to forget his somewhat unusual method of entrance into the country.

The attendance at the exhibition included:—Lord and Lady Longford, Mr. and Mrs. Curran, Mr. Montgomery, M. and Mlle. de Laforcade, son and daughter of the French Minister; M. C. Duhamel, Mr. George Collie, A.R.H.A.; Mr. Harry Kernoff, R.H.A.; Mr. Thomas McCreevy, the Rev. Father Senan, and Miss Lucy Glazebrook, who assisted Miss Baker in the organisation of the exhibition.

MEALS IN THE EVENINGS

GUILD OF GOODWILL'S IDEA

The Guild of Goodwill contemplates the serving of meals in the evenings, Mr. W. E. Wylie, K.C., told the members of the Irish Women Citizens' Association, at No. 5 Leinster street, Dublin, yesterday, when he gave an account of the activities of the Guild of Goodwill during the last few weeks. It must be realised that it was a privilege to do something to help the less fortunate members of the community, he said, and he advocated some permanent practical form of Christian charity and social service. The restaurant in Pearse street was now providing an average of 1,200 cooked meals a day on the premises and catering for some 500 cooked meals to be carried away in containers. A restaurant like this was essential for workers with small incomes, such as the business girl with an income of £1 per week. As things stood at the moment, the destitute poor would have to be looked after by charitable organisations, although it was hoped that, in the near future, tickets for 4d. meals would be distributed at the door.

On the subject of fuel, Mr. Wylie said that 4,000 tons of turf and 1,000 tons of timber had already been distributed to the workers of Dublin.

Miss Helen Chenevix, of the Irish Women Workers' Union, presided.

THE ARTIST'S VISION

"There is much in common between art and the higher states of sanctity: artists and saints are both seers," said the Very Rev. E. Leen, C.S.Sp., yesterday, in the first part of his paper on "The Philosophy of Art," read before the Study Circle of the Catholic Central Library, Merrion square, Dublin.

The artist penetrated beyond phenomena to the underlying reality: the reality which he saw was not mere truth, but truth clothed in beauty. Art imitated nature—nature active, not passive. Aristotle held that there was such a thing as natural inspiration—a power of vision that distinguished the artist from the artisan: he made forms and colours and rhythmic movements flash on the mind of the beholder a truth that was more than earthly. The true artist ushered us into something beyond. He was not a transcriber; he was a creator, and revealed not merely something that already had existence, but a something that came into existence from his genius.

TO MAKE BARM BRACK

In the report of the Gas Company lecture in yesterday's issue it was stated that the ingredients to be used in the making of barm brack included a tablespoonful of salt. This, of course, should have read a teaspoonful of salt

Rest's Changes for To-day's Match

WHILE the Universities will play as selected, the Rest of Leinster show three changes for to-day's game at Donnybrook. The original half-backs, J. D. O'Connor and F. Wolfe, are replaced by C. R. Griffin (Old Wesley) and D. Thorpe (Old Belvedere), while E. T. Flynn (Palmerston) comes into the back row of the pack instead of J. Murray (Lansdowne).

Many people would have preferred Thorpe to Wolfe at scrum-half from the start, but Griffin is something of a gamble. He was unfortunate in being unable to get a place on the Trinity team for the last two or three seasons, and, having joined Old Wesley, this is really his first season as a senior. He has done extremely well, but it seems to be testing him rather severely. Teams:—

Rest of Leinster—C. Murphy (Lansdowne); B. T. Quinn (Old Belvedere), G. J. Quinn (Old Belvedere), P. E. Meehan (St. Mary's College), T. Chamberlain (Blackrock College); C. R. Griffin (Old Wesley) (o.?), D. Thorpe (Old Belvedere); J. J. Spicer (Wanderers), S. Henry (Old Belvedere), E. G. Ryan (Blackrock College), P. D. Madden (Clontarf), P. Delaney (Lansdowne), E. T. Flynn (Palmerston), K. O'Brien (Bective Rangers), J. J. Guiney (Clontarf).

Combined Universities—L. McEntee (U.C.D.); K. P. O'Flanagan (U.C.D.), S. D. Walsh (Dublin University), H. Uprichard (Dublin University), D. R. Doyle (Dublin University); E. A. Carry (Dublin University) (out), H. de Lacy (Dublin University); D. Ryan (U.C.D.), E. O'Malley (U.C.D.), S. Barnes (Dublin University), J. P. Walsh (Dublin University), D. J. Devane (U.C.D.), D. J. Hingerty (U.C.D.), T. A. Headon (U.C.D.), W. F. Skuse (Dublin University).

NOVEMBER HANDICAP CALL-OVER

Filator shortened in price as favourite for the Manchester November Handicap at the Victoria Club call-over yesterday. He advanced to 11 to 2 after 6 to 1 had been taken to win £4,000. The latter's stable companion, Pointis, was on offer at 100 to 6. It is reported that there has been plenty of money for him in the provinces. Prices:—11/2 Filator (o., 6/ 1t.), 9/1 Royalist (o.), 10/1 Jamaica Inn (o., 100/9 t.), 100/9 Germanicus (o.), 13/1 Buxton (o., 14/1 t.), 100/7 Eurasian (o.), 100/6 each Justification (o., 18/1 t.) and Pointis (o.), 20/1 each Spanish Mist (t., o.), Devonian (o.), Selim Hassan (o.), Blotting Pad (o.), Crown Colony (o.), 25/1 each Finis (o.), Planchado (o.), Romeo II. SPECIAL CRIMINAL COURT CASES

Daniel O'Toole, of Belfast, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment for being a member of an illegal organisation and for having a copy of the Special Communiqué, issued by an illegal organisation.

A detective said that he and another officer followed O'Toole and another man on October 7 last. At Synnott place, off Dorset street, the men started to run. When O'Toole refused to halt the detective fired twice. The detectives overtook O'Toole at a shop on the North Circular road, and found on him the document referred to in the charges.

The trial of John Lynch, Old Youghal road, Cork, was fixed yesterday to take place on November 7 next. Lynch is charged with the possession of a revolver and a Thompson sub-machine gun, with intent to endanger life; the possession of two revolvers, and 86 rounds of ammunition; also membership of an illegal organisation and possession of incriminating documents.

PIN IN BAR OF SOAP
WOMAN AWARDED £55

Mrs. Margaret Cronin, Goatisland, Shearin's Cross, Kilmallock, claimed £300 in the Dublin Circuit Court, before Judge Davitt, from Messrs. Lever Bros. (Ireland), Ltd., for personal injuries and other loss sustained through negligence in the manufacture or packing of a bar of Sunlight soap.

Mr. M. Binchy, K.C., who, with Mr. W. Binchy (instructed by Mr. R. Geary), appeared for the plaintiff, said that plaintiff was washing her leg when she cut a vein. Her leg bled and subsequently became septic. She was laid up for nearly two months. She found a piece of metal in the soap.

Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., who, with Mr. O. Keane (instructed by Messrs. Hayes and Sons), appeared for the defence, said that the piece of metal was a pin, and the defendants contended that, physically or mechanically, it could not have been in the soap when it left the factory.

A decree for £55, with costs and expenses, was granted.

SERVING BREAD FROM A VAN
NOT SHOP WORK, COURT HOLDS

The Supreme Court, by a majority, answered "No" to the question whether or not Patrick Martin, Congress avenue, Drogheda, who had been employed as a breadserver by Messrs. Galbraith, Ltd., Shop street, Drogheda, was a "member of the staff" of a shop and doing "shop work" for them within the meaning of Section 2 of the Shops (Conditions of Employment) Act, 1938.

The question, among others, had been before the Supreme Court on a case stated from the High Court on circuit at Dundalk, and had been remitted for the finding of further facts.

The expression "member of the staff" is, by Sub-Section 1 of Section 2, defined as any person (when used in relation to a shop other than a refreshment house) who does for the proprietor of such shop any work which is wholly or mainly performed within or in the precincts of such shop, and is wholly or mainly in connection with the serving of customers, or the receipt of orders or the dispatch of goods, or the unpacking or packing of goods, and is not industrial work; and the expression "shop work" means work which is connected with or ancillary to the business carried on at a shop.

Among the further facts found were that no less than 25 per cent., nor more than 30 per cent., of the customers came to the van to make their purchases and were served there; that the remaining 70 to 75 per cent. were served at their houses, and that in the cases of the 14 or 15 shops on Mr. Martin's round Mr. Martin went into the shops and did not sell at the van.

At least 90 per cent. of the customers were served within ten yards of the van, and about 50 per cent. were served within six yards of it.

On these findings the Chief Justice was of opinion that Mr. Martin was not employed within the precincts of the van, and that the question should be answered "No."

Mr. Justice Murnaghan was of the same opinion.

Mr. Justice Meredith expressed the view that Mr. Martin was within the precincts of the van.

Mr. Justice Geoghegan agreed with the Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice O'Byrne took the same view as Mr. Justice Meredith.

Messrs. Galbraith, Ltd., were allowed the costs of the case stated and the arguments thereon and of the further hearing on the remission of the case stated to the High Court on Circuit.

At the High Court on Circuit an appeal was brought on behalf of Messrs. Galbraith from a judgment of the Circuit Court in favour of Mr. Martin, who had claimed to be entitled to overtime pay under the Act, and the case now goes back to the High Court on Circuit, to be dealt with in accordance with the findings of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Lavery, K.C.; Mr. Roe, K.C.; and Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Mr. Edward G. L. Ward) appeared for Messrs. Galbraith, Ltd.; and Mr. Costello, K.C.; Mr. Cawley, K.C.; and Mr. Michael J. Sweeney (instructed by Mr Thomas J. Branigan) for Mr. Martin.

(BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT AND A JURY.)

The jury found in favour of Margaret Keating, a minor, 84 Stapelstown road, Carlow, and assessed damages at £400, for which judgment was given, with costs, in her action against James Hughes, T.D., Kellistown, County Carlow, for damages for injuries suffered by reason of her having been struck by his motor car at Stapelstown road on October 5, 1940.

Mr. McGonigal, K.C., and Mr. C. B. McKenna (instructed by Messrs. P. J. Byrne and Co.) appeared for the girl; and Mr. Costello, K.C.; Mr. Lavery, K.C.; and Mr. William Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. Sean Ryan, of Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) for Mr. Hughes.

The ceremony, with Nuptial Mass, was performed by the Very Rev. Monsignor Moloney, assisted by the Rev. Philip O'Reilly.

The bride was given away by her father, and was attended by her sister, Miss Barbara Dempsey.

Dr. John Lannigan was best man.

After a wedding breakfast, held by the bride's mother at 45 Ailesbury road, Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Horan left for the West of Ireland.

POLICE ACCUSED OF ASSAULT

(BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT AND A JURY.)

The hearing of an action of Thomas Reid, Marlhill, New Inn, Cahir, against Chief Superintendent Edward A. Reynolds and Detective Sergeant James B. Reynolds, both of Thurles Civic Guard Station, for damages for alleged assault, stated to have taken place in the New Inn Civic Guard Barracks on November 25 last, was opened and adjourned until to-day.

Both the Chief Superintendent and the Detective Sergeant denied having assaulted Mr. Reid.

Mr. Lavery, K.C.; Mr. Nolan Whelan, K.C., and Mr. Sean MacBride (instructed by Mr. John J. Timoney) appeared for Mr. Reid; and Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C.; Mr. McEnery, K.C., and Mr. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. F. J. O'Connor) for Chief Superintendent Reynolds and Detective Sergeant Reynolds.

On November 21, 1940, said Mr. Lavery, opening the case for Mr. Reid, the body of Mary McCarthy was found in a field near Marlhill, about a quarter of a mile from the house of a farmer named Cæsar, with whom were employed Mr. Reid and a man, Henry Gleeson. Gleeson was convicted of the murder of the woman and executed.

Some time after the discovery of the body Reid, when returning from the New Inn creamery, was stopped by a Guard and asked to come to the barracks. Some time after 11 p.m. Chief Superintendent Reynolds told him to stand against the wall. The Chief Superintendent stood on one side of him and the Detective Sergeant on the other. The Chief Superintendent said to him: "Had Harry (meaning Gleeson) his boots on when he called you on Thursday morning?" Reid answered, "No," that Gleeson was only after getting up. The Chief Superintendent said, "Say yes," and struck him with his fist on the side of the face. Then they started to question him about other matters and each of them struck him.

After Mr. Reid was struck the Chief Superintendent and the Detective Sergeant left. Another officer asked Mr. Reid some more questions, and some time later he was told that he could go. He left the station with his cheek cut, his eye blackened and his face swollen. He was seen next day by a doctor.

In the course of the case certain proceedings took place, as a result of which the defendants were ordered to pay certain costs; but, to the surprise of Mr. Reid's solicitor, he was informed by a representative of the Chief State solicitor that he (the Chief State solicitor) would, through his representative, attend on the taxation of the costs, although that was a civil case, in which one citizen complained of the conduct of two other citizens.

TRANSPORT ACT PROSECUTION

Messrs. L. and T. Brooks, 7 Upper Gardiner street, Dublin, were summoned in the District Court yesterday, before District Justice Burke, for carrying on an unlicensed transport business, with not having transport plates on a lorry, with employing an unlicensed driver and failing to notify the registration authority of the sale of the lorry. The summonses arose out of the carriage of rowing boats for the Dublin University Rowing Club to Waterford regatta last July.

Thomas Waters, Bungalow, Vernon avenue, Clontarf, was summoned for carrying on an unlicensed road transport business with the same lorry on the same occasion, and also with aiding and abetting Messrs. Brooks in the offence. Messrs. Brooks were summoned for aiding and abetting Waters.

Ambrose Robinson, 32 East Arran street, was summoned for driving the vehicle without a transport licence, without insurance and without a driver's licence.

Guard O. Lew, Carriage Office, gave evidence of the use of the lorry.

The case was adjourned until to-day.

Mr. Kenneth Dea (instructed by Messrs. C. J. Hourihan) appeared for Brooks Brothers, and Mr. D. Bell (instructed by Mr. Ml. Beatty) for Thomas Waters.

Messrs. Miller and Co., Bray, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

STOCK MARKET REPORTS

DUBLIN QUIETER

There was not quite so much business passing on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday and some small selling caused prices to ease in places. British Industrials moved in irregular fashion, but changes were small.

In view of the forthcoming new loan, Home Government Funds were busier and values held up well.

The recent strength of Home Rails Rails brought in small profit-taking. Great Northern Pref. gave way to 29½ and the Deb. fell a point to 69. Great Southern Deb. declined to 56½. Carroll Ord. were nominally harder on the report. Stocks of tobacco as shown in the balance sheet were considered quite good. 29/- was bid for Irish Times 1st Pref. but again without result; the Second Pref. rose further to 4/6.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Tuesday.—Though the Stock Market showed improvement in the afternoon, considerable timidity existed and dealings slowed down, with slight recessions from the peak prices and movements confined to narrow limits.

Rail shares held steady in the afternoon on the belief that the outcome of the wage question would be an acceptable compromise. The Steels lost some of their early gains, and the Tobacco group showed losses ranging to 2 points.

The close was irregular.—(Reuter.)

RHODESIAN COPPER DISAPPOINTMENT

The directors of one of the large Rhodesian copper producers — Mufulira Copper Mines—have decided not to recommend a dividend on its capital, the issued amount of which is £4,888,874, for the year to 30th June last, owing to the heavy taxation. For 1939-40 the dividend was lowered from 13¾ to 11¼ p.c., in spite of a considerable expansion in sales and operating profit, owing to the increased provision needed for taxation.

The shares of this company are not publicly held, but the announcement adversely affected the shares of the Rhodesian Selection Trust, which controls Mufulira, and owns approximately 64 p.c. of the company's capital, and Rhokana Corporation, which holds about 32 p.c. of Mufulira's capital.

The last annual dividend of Rhodesian Selection Trust was reduced, while Rhokana Corporation, which increased its operating profit for 1939-40, had to cut its final dividend for that year because of taxation, and in April last reduced its interim from 25 to 15 p.c.

The shares of Rhodesian Anglo-American, which controls Rhokana, also declined yesterday.

IRISH EXCHEQUER RETURN

The Exchequer return for the period April 1 to October 25, 1941, shows that revenue is £433,132 more and expenditure £1,787,368 higher than in the same period of 1940.

The revenue last week amounted to £462,010, compared with £389,014 in the corresponding week last year, and expenditure to £335,000, compared with £422,000.

The balance in the Exchequer on October 25, 1941, was £1,310,376, compared with £2,860,604 on the corresponding date last year, and £728,320 on April 1, 1941.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

The supply of credit was barely adequate for the market's needs yesterday, and in some instances the special buyer was called upon to relieve the situation. The demand for bills was at a low ebb.

Silver quotations remained unchanged at 23½d. per oz.

ARGENTINE RAILS DECLINE

Once again business moved slowly in the London Stock Markets yesterday, with prices inclined to sag. Little selling was reported. One of the few firm sections was that for Kaffirs, where renewed Cape buying produced a modest recovery in Far West Rand issues.

A development of interest in late dealings was an all round decline in Rhodesian Copper issues on the surprise passing of the Mufulira dividend.

Gilt-edged Securities were no exception to the general trend at the outset, but when Old War Loan encountered fresh support up to 104⅞ surrounding issues firmed up, to close without net change.

In the Foreign section Japanese Bonds were another ½ easier in places.

Among British Rails some of the prior charges attracted investment demand and held steady. In the Foreign Rail group Argentines lost ground under the influence of the B.A. and Western report, which pointed out that prospects for this year are overshadowed by the uncertainties of the grain market. The good traffic returns helped "Canpacs," which closed ⅛ up at 11⅞.

Turnover in Industrials was at a low point, but Breweries continued to attract support, and further rises of 6d. occurred in both Guinness and Bass. Shipping Shares formed another bright section.

Oil Shares were dull and lower.

FOOD AND PRODUCE

CATTLE.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN.—A decidedly more cautious and uncertain disposition marked trade here from the opening to the close, and ultimately it became evident that there was some curtailment in volume of requirements, which, in face of the heavy supply of over 4,500 beasts to be handled, somewhat seriously embarrassed sellers' pretensions on the money question. The turn-out of both heifers and bullocks in point of finish and quality was of tolerably good and satisfactory standard. There was a moderate inquiry for suitably-meated beasts fitting cross-Channel markets, but the general situation lacked energy, and, so far as business went, values in the main must be written a good 1/- per cwt. worse over the day's proceedings, with many drafts of the rougher element unsold at a late hour, when values were:—Best heifers 46/- to 47/- and 48/-, useful secondary types 44/- to 45/-, others 40/- to 43/-; prime bullocks 48/- to 50/-, extra up to 52/-, good commercial sorts 45/- to 47/-, and rougher 41/- to 44/- per live cwt.

THE ARMY OFFICERS RECEIVE COMMISSIONS

At a luncheon given at the Military College, Curragh Camp, yesterday in honour of twenty-nine cadets who were commissioned as officers in the Regular Army, the Minister for Defence (Mr. Oscar Traynor) reminded the young officers that they were heirs to the tradition of a nation which had fought persistently for its freedom. It might well be that in the future they would have to defend their liberty.

After the blessing of their swords by the Rev. H. Vere Flint and the Rev. J. Fitzsimons, Church of Ireland and Roman Catholic chaplains respectively, the new officers took the oath and received their commissions from Mr. Traynor on the parade ground. The Minister was accompanied by Lieut.-General D. MacKenna, Chief of Staff; Colonel T. McNally, Colonel L. Egan, Major P. Tuite and Major Collins Powell.

Lieutenant J. Lundon administered the oath, and the newly-commissioned officers received their first salute as such from Sergeant-Major Dunne, senior non-commissioned officer, who had played an outstanding part in their training as cadets. Captain G. S. Cox commanded twenty-nine officers who took part in the ceremony as representatives of the various service arms to which the new officers are gazetted. Lieutenant P. Clerkin commanded the cadets during the ceremony of commissioning, and the guard of honour of troops was under the command of Lieutenant F. Neill.

"PRINCESS IDA"
SPECTACULAR SHOW AT THE GAIETY

The production of "Princess Ida" at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, last night by the Rathmines and Rathgar Musical Society was on a truly lavish scale. Described as "a respectful perversion of the Poet Laureate's work, 'The Princess,' the libretto is a satire on the then prevalent absorbing subject of women's rights. The opera, which is the only one of the Gilbert and Sullivan series written in three acts, was magnificently staged and presented, and Mr. Arthur Healy, hon. secretary of the Society, who was responsible for the production, deserved hearty congratulations. As on the opening night, the success of the piece was in the main due to the excellent casting and, above all, team work.

As the Princess Eileen Clancy carried the rôle with commendable dignity, and her singing had a fine dramatic ring. Mabel Home was a most comprehensive figure as Lady Blanche, her disquisitions in abstract science being excellently delivered. Richard Midgley, Robert McCullagh and Jack O'Connor made a great trio as Hilarian and his two friends. They displayed a most entertaining turn for comedy. A striking contrast was offered by W. G. J. Thornhill, Hubert O'Connor and Cyril Hatfield as the three fire-fighting sons of King Gama. In their fiery mood they were capital. Mida O'Brien played up well as Melissa, and Gladys MacNevin, Maureen Harild and Margery Watson also filled their rôles excellently.

To A. E. Glynn, veteran member of the Society, must go a special meed of praise for his character study of King Gama. His make up, acting, biting speech and droll songs were all as perfect as could be—a grand performance this. The chorus entered with great enthusiasm into their work. Mr. Joseph Bouch, the conductor, kept the piece moving at a lively pace, never allowing the principals or chorus to drag.

DUBLIN DETECTIVE ON ROBBERY CHARGE
STORY OF REMOVAL OF A SAFE

"He seemed to be helping me and obstructing me at the same time," a detective told the jury at Green Street Courthouse, Dublin, yesterday, when a robbery was described during the trial of Thomas Doyle, a detective officer, who is alleged to have broken into Messrs. Hafner and Sons, South Great George's street, Dublin, and, in association with two other men now serving sentences, stolen £212.

Christopher Hickey, one of the sentenced men told the Court that after breaking into Hafner's, they took the safe to Milltown, broke it open, and that Doyle counted its contents and made arrangements about a division of the money. Later on Doyle asked him to meet him at a publichouse at Aston's quay, and shortly after Doyle had told him that he might be arrested. Detective Sergeant Moran walked into the shop and arrested him.

When Captain P. Cowan, Solicitor for Doyle, suggested that all the stories told by Hickey were concoctions and that Doyle would swear they were concoctions, Hickey said: "I deny that."

Bernard Tyndall told how he drove a motor car from a garage at Leeson street with Hickey to Mercer street, where he met Doyle and Wakefield, and they took the safe away in the car. Later Doyle told him to get away to England as the police were after him, and that some of the stolen money had been found and some had been washed away in the canal.

John Harrington, manager of premises at Ranelagh which had been broken into, said that Doyle went to the premises on the day after the robbery, and actually assisted detectives who were investigating the affair.

The further hearing was adjourned till to-day.

OBITUARY
LORD LOUTH

Randal Pilgrim Ralph Plunkett, 14th Baron Louth, died early yesterday morning in Dublin, aged 73. He had been in bad health for some years past, but his death was rather unexpected, and will be widely regretted in County Louth, where he was greatly loved. A most interesting personality, Lord Louth in his youth, took an active interest in almost all forms of sport—polo, yachting, hunting, shooting, fishing, cricket and football. He was born on board the yacht Pilgrim, near Dieppe, on September 24th, 1868, the only son of the 13th Baron and Anna, daughter of Walter McGeough Bond, Drumsill, Co. Armagh. He succeeded to the title on the death of his father in 1883, and seven years later he married Eugenie de Miarritze, daughter of Edmund Hooke Wilson Bellairs, British Vice-Consul at Biarritz. The marriage was dissolved in 1912, and in 1913 he married Dorothy Lettice, daughter of the late Colonel T. L. Hampton Lewis, Anglesey. His second wife died in 1923. His third marriage, to Marie Ethel, daughter of the late Charles Read, solicitor, of Hampstead, and widow of Sir John Prichard-Jones, took place in 1926. Educated at Oscott College, Birmingham, and at Woburn Park, Weybridge, he served through the whole of the last war with the 3rd Battalion of the Wiltshire Regiment. Lord Louth's estate in County Louth covered about 5,000 acres, and he was popular with every grade of society there. In earlier years he travelled a great deal, but for some time past his journeys had been confined to Dublin, London and the family seat at Louth Hall. He is succeeded by his son, the Hon. Otway Plunkett, who was born in 1892.

LORD LOUTH.
